

1911

Editorial

Follow this and additional works at: <https://scholarlycommons.law.northwestern.edu/jclc>

 Part of the Criminal Law Commons, Criminology Commons, and the Criminology and Criminal Justice Commons

Recommended Citation

Editorial, 2 J. Am. Inst. Crim. L. & Criminology 1 (May 1911 to March 1912)

This Editorial is brought to you for free and open access by Northwestern University School of Law Scholarly Commons. It has been accepted for inclusion in Journal of Criminal Law and Criminology by an authorized editor of Northwestern University School of Law Scholarly Commons.

Journal of the American Institute of Criminal Law and Criminology

Managing Editor, JAMES W. GARNER,

Professor of Political Science in the University of Illinois, Urbana, Ill.

Editorial Director, HARVEY C. CARBAUGH,

Colonel and Judge-Advocate, U. S. A., Department of the Lakes, Chicago, Ill.

ASSOCIATE EDITORS

Adalbert Albrecht, South Easton, Mass.

Charles F. Amidon, United States District Judge, Fargo, N. D.

Frederic B. Crossley, Librarian Elbert H. Gary Law Library, Northwestern University.

Charles A. De Courcy, Judge of the Superior Court of Massachusetts, Lawrence, Mass.

Charles A. Ellwood, Professor of Sociology, University of Missouri.

Frederick R. Green, Secretary of the Council on Health and Public Instruction of the American Medical Association, Chicago, Ill.

Charles R. Henderson, Professor of Sociology, University of Chicago.

John D. Lawson, Professor of Law, University of Missouri.

Orlando F. Lewis, Secretary of the New York Prison Association, New York.

Edward Lindsey, Member of the Warren (Pa.) Bar.

Adolf Meyer, Professor of Psychiatry, Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, Md.

Nathan William MacChesney, of the Chicago Bar; President of the American Institute of Criminal Law and Criminology.

Frank H. Norcross, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Nevada, Carson City, Nev.

Roscoe Pound, Professor of Law, Harvard University.

Richard A. Sylvester, Chief of Police, Washington, D. C., President of the International Police Association.

Arthur W. Towne, Secretary of the New York State Probation Commission, Albany, N. Y.

Chester G. Vernier, Professor of Law, University of Indiana.

Guy Montrose Whipple, Professor of Psychology, Cornell University.

John H. Wigmore, Dean of the Northwestern University Law School, Chicago, Ill.

Elmer A. Wilcox, Professor of Law, University of Iowa.

Communications relating to contributions and books for review should be addressed to the Managing Editor, Urbana, Ill.

Subscriptions and business correspondence should be addressed to the Editorial Director, 31 West Lake Street, Chicago, Ill.

Issued bi-monthly. Subscription $3.00 per year, 60 cents per number.

CONTRIBUTORS TO THIS NUMBER.

Dr. J. A. Van Hamel is Professor of Criminal Law and Procedure in the University of Amsterdam, Holland. He is a son of the well-known criminologist, G. A. Van Hamel, one of the founders of the International Union of Criminal Law, and for a long time a professor in the University of Amsterdam. Dr. Van Hamel is one of the most distinguished of the younger jurists of Europe and is the author of various works on legal and penal science. He was one of the official delegates of Holland to the International Prison Congress at Washington last October.

Edward J. McDermott is a member of the bar of Louisville, where he was born and reared. He studied at Queen's College, Belfast, Ireland at Göttingen, Germany, and is a graduate of the Harvard Law School. He has served in the legislature of Kentucky, was a Presidential elector in 1880, and in 1890 was a member of the Constitutional Convention of Kentucky. In 1892 he was chairman of the committee which prepared the present charter of Louisville and in 1894 was his party's nominee for Congress. Mr. McDermott is a forceful writer, an effective speaker and an accomplished lawyer.

Hon. E. Ray Stevens has for eight years been a judge of the Circuit Court of Wisconsin and is President of the Wisconsin branch of the American Institute of Criminal Law and Criminology. He is one of the foremost jurists of Wisconsin and is deeply interested in criminal science.

Maynard Shipley resides at Oakland, Cal., and is a lecturer on popular science subjects by profession, but has devoted the greater part of the past fifteen years to the study of criminology and historical jurisprudence, with special reference to the origin and development of criminal law. Contributions from his pen dealing with the history of crime and its punishment in ancient and modern times, in Abyssinia, China, Korea, Siam, etc., have appeared from time to time in the leading magazines, besides special statistical studies of crimes of violence in great cities, and the relation of immigration to crime. A list of his principal articles dealing with the history of capital punishment and crimes of violence in certain countries is given on page 48 of this issue of the JOURNAL.

Charles Richmond Henderson has been Professor of Sociology in the University of Chicago since 1892. He graduated at the old University of Chicago and received the degree of Doctor of Philosophy from Leipzig. He is Associate Editor of the American Journal of Theology, of the American Journal of Sociology, and of the Journal of Criminal Law and Criminology. He is one of the most prolific of American writers, the more important of his books being "Defectives and Delinquents," the "Social Spirit in America," "Social Settlements," "Modern Methods of Charity," "Modern Prison Systems," "Industrial Insurance" and "Preventive Methods and Agencies." He has served as President of the National Conference of Charities and Corrections, President of the National Prison Association, and is now United States Prison Commissioner on the International Prison Commission.

Archibald Hopkins has been clerk of the United States Court of Claims since 1872. He is a son of Mark Hopkins, former president of Williams College, and is a graduate of that institution. He served through the Civil War and received two brevets for conspicuous gallantry. After the war he studied law in the office of David Dudley Field and in the Columbia Law School, from which he received his law degree. He is a trustee of the George Washington University and Vice-Chairman of the Board of Trustees.

Henry E. C. Ditzzen is chief probation officer of Davenport, Iowa. He is a graduate of the College of Literature and Arts of the University of Iowa and also of the school of law of the same institution. He is interested in juvenile court work and has made a study of juvenile delinquents from the economic, legal and social points of view.