A BIBLIOGRAPHY ON THE RELATIONS OF CRIME AND FEEBLE-MINDEDNESS.

L. W. CRAFTS.¹

The following bibliography represents an attempt to bring together a larger part of the literature dealing with the relations of crime and feeble-mindedness. The majority of the titles are from English and German sources. Annotations are limited to the starring of articles considered to be especially significant contributions to the subject.

This specific bibliography is a part of a more comprehensive work on the social phases of feeble-mindedness. Hence articles dealing with juvenile delinquency, sex immorality, and the legal problems involved in the criminal aspect of feeble-mindedness were listed in other sections and do not appear in the one here presented. Only titles received by the author previous to May 1916 are included.
